

PROJECT CAMELOT'S TMAN WHITE HATS INTERVIEW

(full transcript)

Kerry Cassidy:

“I just got a mystery guest here that’s just joined me. This is TMan, and some people are going to know him. He’s a bit infamous on the net, but anyway his name is TMan. That’s the name he goes by. It’s like a moniker, and he is a member of the White Hats. I’m allowed to say that much, and I have to say that we’ve been working on something this weekend, a publication to get out to people and he wanted to come on my show to talk about it, so I’m going to turn the mike over to him and let him talk to all of you and let see how it goes.”

TMan:

“Hi everybody. How you doing? We just want to thank Kerry for having us on the show this evening. I think we’ll be about a half hour here and talk about White Hats report number 48. It’s forthcoming. It’s taken a while to really go through all of the machinations of what we’re reporting about. The topic will be Pure Heart Investments, and I think that what we’re going to see is that, as we’re going to demonstrate, everybody knows there’s a long line of financial fraud from the Cabal, and many people call the Cabal many things. You know, it’s what we would term as the underworld of the financial game here, not only in the United States but literally around the world. In the last year we’ve seen a lot of things happening. The unfortunate part is that you can’t quite put your finger on anything because of the very nature of what it is. Like, the Japanese had 20 Trillion Dollars stolen from them out of their, what we would equate as their Social Security fund, like we have here in the states. The unfortunate part is they can only say that they have twenty trillion missing, because there isn’t much of a story behind it, other than it’s missing. You can’t touch it. You can’t feel it. We’ve taken it a little bit deeper, as those of you know who are familiar with us at the White Hats. We are interested in humanity. We are interested in the sovereignty of the United States and every other country. We all, in our lifetimes, have taken oaths to protect and defend, and we are here to do that. We hear a lot of people do not like what we do. There are times when we don’t like what we do, but it has to be done. So, the net effect of the time we’ve spent here with Kerry is a, we jokingly call it a mutual admiration when in reality it’s a mutual respect. The types of things that Kerry talks about in one way we talk about in another way. We recognize that. I myself didn’t really have a basis for conversation for a site like Project Camelot, just because it was so different from what we did. But then certain things started to come out and when we needed the information we knew who to go to, and by God we’re glad that we did. So, we collaborated, we worked together. My time with Kerry has been enlightening, intriguing, and I will hope that our two worlds will come together, and the understanding of each other. Many people that listen and talk to Kerry’s poor man really don’t have a lot of time to listen to the financial side of the world, and a lot of the guys on our side don’t really spend a lot of time in Kerry’s side of the world. What we’re finding is, is that the great segregation is a great way for the Cabal and their members to keep the truth suppressed, but I think as you’ll see in our #48, that things are going to start coming (together). 48 is HUGE! It is by far the largest report that we’ve ever printed.

So, 48 is very large. 48 will have an unreasonable number of documents to support positions, that people can see. We come from the underworld as well, if you will. We know how to collect data, and we know when we're getting lied to, and we know how to support a position. So we're hoping that people will listen for 48 and look for 48 on the White Hat website, and just know that Kerry has been invaluable to our research to help guide us and lead us down the path, or what we call the rabbit hole."

Kerry:

"Ok. Well, thank you very much, TMan, that's Lovely. I want to give out your URL, and it's tdarkcabal.blogspot.com (The White Hats Report) and the number for the call-in is on the website, and all you have to do is go to freedomslips.com, if you want to call in. I've got some people in the background here that are actually talking about calling in and, you know, I don't know if we have extra time this evening. It's unfortunate that this kind of happened all of a sudden, and I didn't get too much heads up, so we didn't get to prepare the way I'd like to for people. So, if you're there and you want to call in, feel free, and they will take your call and then we'll bring you on the air. So, just letting you know. Let's see. So, if you understand who you're talking to, or who you're listening to, this is TMan. He has been on a couple of radio shows, although it's been a long time ago, from what I know, and I'm not sure his reception was all that friendly. People have been reading the White Hat Reports. I've been commenting on them for a long long time, and we're actually very lucky to have TMan come on the show. I'm going to ask TMan whether we're able to say anything about the Treasury this evening. Was there some activity at the Treasury that you're able to talk about at all?"

TMan:

"Sure. What was reported on MSN this morning, which didn't take us all by surprise - we knew it was going to happen - we just were not prepared for the report to come across main stream media - when on MSN there was the ticker that runs at the bottom of the program, and it stated that the 'U.S. Treasury has consumed the Federal Reserve,' which is something that we knew had been happening for quite a while. We've been watching one person after another, from the Federal Reserve go across to be employed by the Treasury. We know that there's a huge transition going on. It's just an unbelievable shift in the financial power of the world. And I don't mind confirming to you that shift is undetermined to be good or bad at this point. I mean, everybody in the world really knows what has been doing. It's been undetermined as to why they've done it. In 48 we talk about the rabbit hole, and the space program - the secret space program - and a number of other items that we've been able to find out the money goes to. And I've had that confirmed by some of the top people in government and some of the top people formerly with Pure Heart. So, it's kind of intriguing that the Treasury, at this point in time, is about ready to come out. We know that the new money is ready to go. We understand how it's going to come out, and when, and I would say that, within the next week or so, the world's going to be rather surprised at what's going on."

Kerry:

A lot of the people listening, some of the people anyway may know something about the Dinar. I don't know if they know your actually involved with the Dinar to some degree. I don't know if you can talk about that. I don't know if that's sort of private information, but, is there anything you want to tell people about the Dinar, and the reval (revaluation), because I know there are a lot of skeptical people out there about that as well.”

TMan:

“Well, from where we sit, we hear a lot of information on a daily basis and I receive a lot of calls from my responsibilities and my charges. The Iraqi Dinar revaluation is something that is very real. It’s not a scam. It’s something that will happen. It’s part of the world financial scene at this point. The reason why it has not happened is because of the immense political positioning of Obama and the Bush’s versus the Chinese and the rest of the world. We’ve got a game being played in this country. It’s not a good game. It is a game that we’re seeing stress cracks in the Bush Cabal, and people are taking advantage of it. This is a guy that’s had too much power for too long, and they’re trying to make sure that he’s eradicated, not in a physical form but in a practical form. The Dinar. We still do not know when the public announcement will be. There are days that we hear it’s been signed off, ready to go, and we anticipate something to occur, and by the time the next morning comes around it is not to be had. We also know that, when that happens, it always comes out of the oval office, and we understand that, you know, this Obama is a guy that is erratic. He’s just somebody that has adult tantrums. We’ve been surprised by what we’ve heard about (him).”

Kerry:

“Wouldn’t you say he’s under orders.”

TMan:

“Oh. Absolutely. Obama is a figure head. He takes orders from everybody else. He is the most un-presidential president this world’s ever seen.”

Kerry:

“Ok, well, yah, I’m not really going to address that too specifically at this time. Ok, we are actually very close to, well, we’ve got a few minutes left, and I just want to say it’s great that you came on the show. I wonder if there’s anything - If we have a delay we might actually get some extra time here so that, if there are people that want to ask TMan some good financial questions, these people are people that follow the money. Anyone who’s been reading the DarkCabalBlogSpot.com website over time, I think they’ve been in operation for close to two years at this point. I’ve been reading and linking to their reports on a regular basis and I’ve been commenting on them. Sometimes I sort of a hard task master. I’ve been, you know, trying to get them to talk about the Black Projects, about this, that, and the other, and finally they’re taking me up on it, and so I’m very happy about that. You know, it’s all coming out, I mean, sooner or later. But, these guys follow the money, so if you have some questions about the financial situation, feel free to ask them, and we’ll see where that goes, and how long we can stay on the air. I’m going to try to make sure that I have the right window here. Ok. So, at this time, is there anything you want to say to the people. Here’s your opportunity, obviously. Your 15 minutes of fame, if you will, on my show, and hopefully we can do this again in the future. I know you guys have a fascinating saga about your group. Why don’t you describe the group behind the White Hats, because I think people would be (interested). Some people won’t even know who you are. So, if you don’t mind.”

TMan:

“Well, we actually are a group of people that have backgrounds. We all understand how the world works. Many of the people that we write about used to be our former employers; and we’re the guys that you never really able to see. Not that you wouldn’t in the normal course of a day, but most people never saw us.”

Kerry:

“OK. Your backgrounds are in military, in law enforcement, in Intel (intelligence) agencies.”

TMan:

“Absolutely.”

Kerry:

“Across the board. Right?”

TMan:

“Yes. Yes.”

Kerry:

“And world wide, as a matter of fact, isn’t that true also?”

TMan:

“And not just here in the US, but across the world. The world Intel, although it’s segmented by country, for obvious reasons, there’s a lot of cross Intel that goes back and forth, so we have that same information from those relationships at high level, medium level, low level. We get information from all levels. And I would say that, when you’re reading a White Hat Report, what most people don’t know is that we kinda talk about this Retail/Wholesale concept of leadership being on the wholesale level and the Quote/Unquote common folk being on the retail level. It’s sort of a bad analogy but it fits the description. On the wholesale level, when we print a report, the world usually stops. People want to find out if their named. They want to find out if their country is involved. They want to find out how that report relates to them, their environment, their responsibilities. I can tell you (that) I’ve been up on ‘The Hill’ in Washington D.C. the day that we release a report, and you talk about people running around with their hair on fire, yah know, you get the aids, you get all the secondary and tertiary people, to the senators and the congressman carrying their stack of books, papers, briefcases, and on top the’ve got The White Hat Report. And you can tell nobody’s doing anything ‘til they assess whether or not their boss is involved in The White Hat Report. A lot of that is because of you folks. You take our reports, you read them, you embrace what we’re saying, and you hold people accountable. Accountable! Here in the United States we elect leaders. We elect leaders to do things the correct way. But, unfortunately, for a great many years we’ve had this Neo-Nazi concept going on. Take over the world. Control people. Do this, that, and the other thing and, although it’s great to pooh pooh what I just said as a big joke, yah know, people need to take a look around. FEMA camps. What’s going on in the world today is an exact example. Where has all the cash gone? To who’s accounts has all the cash in the world gone to? Why are we having to do all the financial reset world wide? Read 48. You are going to see some things that will absolutely flabbergast you, as to the accounts and some of the groups that we have put out. It will literally blow you away. And, when you're done reading it, you're going to be able to say 'What the hell's going on, and why am I affected (in) this way.' So, I hope that answers your question.

Kerry:

(laughs). Ya, OK. I think you're going to have a lot of people sitting on the edge of their seat, (because) I think they're going to be excited to read what you've got coming out. This is certainly an unusual situation. I've got a person who works with me on my Blue Science website who's asking a question, Matt Pulver, and what people don't know about Matt is that he has a background in the financial world, and he's asking a question here. I'm going to read his question, and it says: 'What is the essential mechanism that will give value to the Dinar upon it's revaluation.' Can you address that please?

TMan:

"Sure. For those of you that have a financial background, I'm going to create an analogy, which would be the simplest way to embrace this. If you were to run a corporation, you would be, as an officer and director of that company, primarily responsible for not only it's operations but the results of those operations. And the results of an operation usually have to do with a financial position. You either made money or you didn't make money. Countries kind of run the same way, in concept, in that the value of the money that they put out is based on it's assets and it's liabilities. That is kind of like the United States, where we have long term debt, short term debt, and the like. Now, if you use the concept of a balance sheet, when the United States went in and invaded Iraq, it was mandated by international law to be responsible for all of the mechanisms necessary on all levels to bring that country back up to an operational position, just like a company. One of those items has to do with the financial aspect to the country, and that gets involved with the IMF and the World Bank and it gets involved with tradable currency or exchangeable currency, etc. In order to get to that point you have to be able to have a salable product. What's that salable product in Iraq? That would be, of course, it's oil. If you take a look at a balance sheet, you do not have the ability of putting in ground assets, meaning it's oil that's in the ground, onto the balance sheet, because they have something that they term as a specific kind of report called an assay. And that's where they estimate, with all the scientific research that they employ, the amount of oil in the ground. The problem with that is that you cannot put that assay, or that estimation, on a balance sheet in the asset section or side of the balance sheet. The way that you do create a value for that is, in this case, by contracts. So that Russia, the U.S. China, Europe, South America, all these countries will enter into long term contracts for so many barrels of oil a month, at such a rate, and then there's escalation-deescalation clauses based on the market for the value of that oil. And they can then estimate what that financial value is to the country and they put that on the asset side of the balance sheet. Well, along with that will come liabilities. In this case, there are certain liabilities that the country will have, but because it's been rebuilt and it's reset, their liabilities are very few. Now, when you do assets minus liabilities you come up with something extra, meaning it's like in your household. If you bring in a thousand dollars a month and you only pay out five hundred you can put five hundred into you bank account and you have a net worth of $500. In a country you take all of your salable product, you reduce that number by your liabilities and you have a net worth. That net worth equates to the strength of the dollar. So if they have a thousand dollar net worth and they print 1,000 one dollar bills, then each bill is worth exactly one dollar. But, if their liabilities go up and they have $500. worth of net worth, against a thousand dollars, or a thousand bills (in circulation) at a dollar (each), then the value of their dollar goes up and down. You hear that in the nightly reports, you hear that in the news paper, where they talk about the strength of the dollar, the strength of the euro, the strength of the yen, the strength of one currency versus another currency. In this case we're talking about a revaluation of the Iraqi Dinar because there's no market for the Dinar. So it has a very minimal value. At this point, when they come out and when they revalue the Dinar. . .

So, the result is this much embattled Iraqi Dinar revaluation. All of the conversation of what the Dinar is going to come out at, what's it's value, it's all rhetoric because it's going to be controlled, but rest assured it will come out. There is a value to it. For those of you who hold Dinar now, you will see an increase in your Dinar, and be happy and blessed that you had an opportunity to be involved in something that is once in a lifetime. It will bestow many financial blessings on many of you.”

Kerry:

“OK! Well, that's going to amaze a lot of people to hear that. It will be great if we can go on a little longer. Do we need to a break at this point? Because, obviously I've got questions. We don't have to go to a break? OK. That's awesome! So, we're getting a thank you from Matt Pulver. I guess that satisfied that question and we can appreciate it. We can open for other questions, basically, from out there. At this time I want to also bring up the Global Settlements. Is it possible for you to talk a little bit about that? Because, just like with the Dinar, there's a lot of skeptics out there in regard to the global settlements, and there's a lot of people that don't seem to understand. It doesn't matter how many reports you put out there. I think people are still perplexed and wondering if that's a scam.”

TMan:

“No. The Global Settlements are not a scam. Actually, it's in the reverse. What is a scam is what's going on in the world to try to maintain control. When the Global Settlements happen a lot of the current power base that we fight, and their positions, will be minimized and the basis of our fight truly will be over, although it won't be, because these guys always try to penetrate all the other organizations that will be replacing the federal reserve and some of these others. But there's a huge battle for control of the financial world and, so far, they're winning. Up to this point they've been winning. They're ready to bankrupt this world. If in fact the Global Settlements go through and the Iraqi Dinar goes through, it puts fresh resources, cash, back into the world economy, and that means their control has been lessened. Their grip has been lessened dramatically and they will not have the control over the things that they want to have control over. You know, commodities, resources of other countries, the NTN trade platform markets, the control over out congressmen and our senators, the control over the Vatican and the Vatican accounts, all of the stuff that we're not supposed to talk about is going to come to an end. What we're hoping is that the White Hats can be a voice to say, ‘Look people! Get a grip. Grow a pair. Stand up. If you're elected, you'd best be looking out for my interests if you represent me and my district and, by God, you better represent the people of this country. If you're in other countries that have a different form of government, you better hold your leaders accountable, because they're selling you out, and they're selling you out for this deep fox hole that they've all bought into.'"

Kerry:

"OK. But, about the Global Settlements, can you talk about - literally - the machinations behind the Global Settlements? How will that come to pass, and what are the global settlements, for the people that are listening that may not be up to speed?"

TMan:

"I won't get into all of how the Global Settlements have come about but, over the course of years there have been many individuals who have been very concerned about - primarily, from outside the U.S. - the status of the U.S. They recognize that the U.S. is the leader of freedom and the voice of conscience in the world, even though it's a little messed up at this point in time. These folks have contributed funds, through mass resources that they control, to make sure that the United States is strong. Add to that the resources from other countries that have been made available, from China that have been made available, that are currently here in this country and ready to be distributed. These are cash in kind. These funds are here. These funds are available, and they're available in the form of deposits in various of the banks here in the United States and around the world, and all they need to be is released. The battle is for the release of those funds."

Kerry:

"OK, but the Global Settlements themselves, what are they? I mean, in other words, what happened to create a situation? Do we have to go into trading programs to talk about this?"

TMan:

"No."

Kerry:

"I mean, what are we talking about Global Settlement Funds? Where do they come from? Why are they owed money, and so on?"

TMan:

"Well, it's not that they're owed money. It's that these are funds that are freely given to keep the world strong. These are funds that people in their - this comes from your side of the world - they had the forethought, in what ever shape and for that is, to see what's going to happen to the World and the United States. Many many years ago, decades ago, they put funds together that were required to be used for the safe keeping of the United States and the world economies. These funds are freely given. There's no debt, no obligation, there's no liability anywhere in the world other than to release these funds for the benefit of mankind."

Kerry:

"OK. And who's holding, or how is that being held back?"

TMan:

“Primarily by George Bush Senior and his minions. OK? That would include - we refer to them as - 41, 42, 43, and 44 (the last 4 presidents) along with all the people that they control in all the various forms and fashions. The people of this world need to demand that these funds are released. They need to tell their leaders. They need to show up on their door steps. They need to say, ‘we want the funds released. We’re sick and tired of what’s going on in the world. We want these funds made available immediately and responsibly under the people that are supposed to have them.’”

Kerry:

“OK. So, in terms of the Gold, are these funds backed by gold? Are they coming from gold?”

TMan:

“Well, everything comes from gold.”

Kerry:

“Really?”

TMan:

“Yes.”

Kerry:

“Well, Ok, I thought they were just printing paper money out of nothing.”

TMan:

“No. That’s the Federal Reserve (bank). That’s not everybody else.

Kerry:

“Alright. So, the Global Settlement funds, their based on gold, what, in the Philippines, or in different countries, or what?”

TMan:

“Everything is gold backed. It’s all responsible money it’s not fiat money or fu-fu money. It’s all responsible money. These are old sources. They believe only in responsibility in the financial sector. Fiat money is a game played based on the rabbit hole, and I think that if you take a look at a timeline over the last several decades, and you match the cash, the fiat money, and all the shenanigans that have gone on with the theft of money and their absolute mass need to consume cash - versus what’s going on in your side of the world, the rabbit hole, all the space technology and all that - you’ll see a very interesting parallel and pattern, and it will absolutely give you a moment of pause, doing the hmmm. ‘What’s going on here, and what are we not being told?’”

Kerry:

“Ok. Alright. At this moment, what I’m sort of looking for is the chat (internet chat room). Anyone who wants to ask questions. And I’m going to look into this chat and see if we have any questions, and if you don't ask questions then we won't keep TMan on the hold here for that much longer. Let me see. We've got somebody talking about the civil war. I'm not sure if there's anything here. Actually if you've got a question please put it in all caps. That always helps me. And, also, if you could put a question mark at the end then that will also help. I'm going to scan the chat really quick, and see if any of you put any questions in this form of chat. If Ammad could also scan the chat in Revolution (radio) and see if there are any questions there, I'd appreciate that. So where are we at. Do we have any questions? Ammad?

Ammad:

"Just that (they) want to know how they can redeem their Dinars."

Kerry:

"OK. I've got another question here as well. Someone want's to know how they can redeem their Dinars."

TMan:

"The system has a protocol buried somewhere, but they've not released that protocol for the redemption. So, unfortunately, I cannot tell you that. What I do know is that very soon - and I don't know what that means. It could be anywhere from a day to a month, but we're kind of at a point where we're waiting and watching for a lot of this to happen. We hear a lot of stuff on a daily basis. We don't have the proper info coming out yet. So, I'd like to tell you what that protocol is, but I can't. But it will be out there. It will be announced. You will see it and, when they do announce it, it shouldn't be a lot of hocus pocus."

Kerry:

"Well, let me say this much, that I understand that if you hold Dinar from a certain organization you go back to that organization in some cases, right, and they handle it. Or maybe you go to the bank directly and, in that case I know at least Wells Fargo is going to be one of the central places where you're going to redeem Dinar, from what I understand."

TMan:

Right now Wells fargo is one of the primary banks that's been assigned to handle the big side of the transactions. It does not mean that you should be running to their retail branches and banging them over the head with your basket of Dinar. They probably won't know what to do with it. In fact I can almost guarantee you they will not know what to do with it. The retail side, meaning the common folks who are holding a couple hundred, or maybe a million Dinar are just going to have to sit tight and wait for those announcements. It will happen. It's coming about and the world pressure is forcing it to happen. I could go through a long litany, which would take quite a while, of the reasons why. But, I think that, for the time span that we have right here, just know that it will happen."

Kerry:

"OK. We've got another person asking - hold on one second here - now the questions are pouring in, so I want to get back to the top (of the chat line) and see. OK. 'What happens if the U.S. goes bankrupt.'"

TMan:

“Hold on to both but cheeks and go for a ride.”

Kerry:

(Laughs) Ok, but isn't the idea here, to some degree - now correct me if I'm wrong - but, my understanding is that, if the Dinar revalues and the Global Settlements happen, money will go back into the system (and) that the downturn, or the bankruptcy of the U.S. - even if it was planned - will be put off, at least for a time. Is that right, or is that too much of an assumption?

TMan:

“Well, it's not so much an assumption. It is more that the answer is far greater and far deeper. The Federal Reserve Board of New York, which is the one that we heard about in the news this week - where a young, if anything - Bangladeshi lad was planning to blow it up - that entity, to be not so facetious, if you gave them a hundred years to get out of debt they couldn't do it. The Federal Reserve does not have the opportunity to get out of the total debt that it has amassed. And, from our standpoint, what we see is that the pattern of the Cabal is that they will load up an entity with so much debt, and then they will bankrupt the entity. That way they can have an opportunity to scatter the records and nobody can find out what they did. Well, if you take a look at the fox hole, and you take a look at the space programs, and the vast amount of cash that's being required to fund all of those operations, and if you take a look at a certain section of the balance sheet on the budget side of the U.S. budget, you'll see that none of the fox hole is in there.”

Kerry:

“So don't you call that, you call that off Balance Sheet? Is that right?”

TMan:

“It's all Off Balance Sheet. Everything's off Balance Sheet, and when you're off balance sheet it's very difficult to control the tracking of what's going on. And it's purposely done. It's not something that's done by fallacy. It's something that's purposely done and, if you want to see one of the greatest examples of off balance sheet numbers, take a look at (issue) 48, 'cause we're going to give it to you. In dollar amounts that, even if you had a year, you would not be able to come up (with it) - 'cause most people could say, well, this is a hundred (dollars), a thousand, a million, a billion, a trillion. You get past a trillion by ten sets of three zeros ($1,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000). How much money is that? You see. And we're, here in the United States, one of the largest countries in the world, where fifteen trillion, sixteen trillion dollars (of off balance sheet money). We can quantify that. We can get your arms around that. But when you see one of these pools of cash are. And we're not going to demonstrate one, in one instance. We're going to demonstrate close to four hundred under one entity.”

Kerry:

“With the zeros going in the stratosphere.”

TMan:

“Absolutely.”

Kerry:

“Yes. I get that.”

TMan:

“And that’s just one very minute example of what we’re going to show you, and we could sit here and show you all day long.”

Kerry:

“And that’s off balance sheet money, right?”

TMan:

“Absolutely.”

Kerry:

“And that means it’s going into the secret space program and being run by the secret government. Alright, so next question. Let’s see, hold one second here.”

TMan:

“And may I say one thing about the bankruptcy?”

Kerry:

“Sure.”

TMan:

The United States has been bankrupt before. You just never knew about it. And it’s happened at least two times. What’s happening is that they just flip the entities. So, we talk about de jure, de facto, we talk about all of that lingo about how does it happen and are we a republic, and are we this and are we that. Somebody needs to sit down, other than me and the White Hats - especially the guys that are talking about that - and they need to sit down and actually understand the machinations that entities go through, including the United States, and what happened at that point in time that created such a disparity in the financial realm that they had to make a shift. If you understand that, you’re going to take a look at what’s going on at the Federal Reserve. You’re going to take a look at what’s happening in the world wide markets, in the NTN Markets. You’re going to take a look at who’s controlling the world wide NTN market, which is Bush, and you’re going to wonder who (is) the financial GURU (that) wants to be in the world wide (market). And the world is fighting this at this point. We’re just the most vocal S.O.B.s on the planet, right now, who want this to end, and we are soliciting the support of all leadership around the world and all people of common place that want to have a voice and want to hold their leaders to accountability for the betterment of them and their families.

Kerry:

“OK. Good Point. Alright. So lets see. Someone is asking how much longer they can hold this up.”

TMan:

Oh, they're past their point. Everything you see right now is merely a hologram. Not in your world, hologram, but in that it's fictitious. It's all P.R. and it's all B.S. Everything you see is nothing more than trying to put bandaids on the leaking dyke long enough to gain enough of a hold and a position so as they still have a chance to hold on to power.”

Kerry:

“OK. So, in other words, their time is up and, you think, at this point their just biding their time?”

TMan:

“Pretty much. Yes.”

Kerry:

“OK.” Somebody want's to ask about the Federal Reserve Notes being released and the end of the Fed contract at the end of the year. Well, my understanding is what we just said at the beginning. Maybe they weren't listening, was that the Treasury just took over the Fed. So that may eliminate any need for the contract to re-up with the Fed. Am I wrong? Or are they going to restructure it?

TMan:

“Well, see, and that's where we don't know. So, the Fed is a very clandestine organization, even though it has a front to it. You're going to see a series of moves Bernanke and a lot of the internal people, like we have seen already, moving over to Treasury that, basically, what we're starting to see is that the Fed is out and that the United States has started to reassume all of it's financial prowess. And the Federal Reserve - I'm going to say this in the most simplistic terms, and understand that these conversations are so deep, and they're not philosophical, they're actual, OK, but they're so deep and they're involved in so much international and global finance, and what it means, so they have to be very careful. The Federal Reserve is about keeping the printing presses running, and there are warehouses around the world that have nothing more that stacks in warehouses of cut dollars from the Federal Reserve, and those printing presses keep printing. And every time they need something they crank up the printing presses again, like they did with the fifteen T ($15 trillion) that we read about with Pure Heart. We really don't know at this point in time whether or not the Federal Reserve, or a derivative of the Federal Reserve - derivative is a bad word in this day and age - but (whether) a derivative of the Federal Reserve is going to exist. What we do know is that the Federal Reserve, as an entity - and I would say that many of the people that disagree with my position need to think about this - is not corrupt. The people are corrupt. OK. The people behind it. The People that are controlling. The Illuminati. The Builderburgers. The Bushes. All these people are trying to control what's going on. If you control the money you control the people. Now, if it is that the Federal Reserve goes away, what happens to something as simple as Western Union? Because that's all controlled by the Federal reserve. Western Union is a company with a product, but all of the systems that they use are Federal Reserve systems for the transfer of cash. It's not Western Union's systems. They're not building their own new cellular towers. OK. They are using the Federal Reserve system. So, if you have an emergency and you need to send fifty bucks to somebody you know across town you won't be able to do that. If you want to go to an ATM machine, push cash in, take cash out, transfer back and forth, you won't be able to do that. If you're a business and you have letters of credit or you have trade credit lines that are international credit lines you will not be able to execute those lines. International trade stops."

Kerry:

"OK, but if the Treasury takes over for the Federal Reserve won't they just keep those things in operation?"

TMan:

"Well, that's what we're hoping. We don't know yet, and I don't think anybody really understands, except the inside core exactly what's going to happen with that Federal Reserve System. What about all the Mechanisms? For example DTCC, if you go on the internet and you look for DTCC, take a look at all the financial systems that are loaded underneath that website. DTCC is a Federal Reserve System. It's owned by Federal Reserve, the people. If you go to BIS, the Bank of International Settlements, that's all primarily Federal Reserve. So, all the financial systems in the Western European economy, there's five economies, monetary systems. If it is that the Western European monetary system goes down, because it is such a huge portion of the world's monetary system, the world comes to a screeching halt. Now, will they allow that to happen? No. They'll figure a way around it. They're prudent men. And, when it comes down to somebody trying to hijack a financial system, I can assure you that there are people in government that are fully aware of what's going on. They're quiet. They're working behind the scenes, and they aren't going to allow this to happen."

Kerry:

"OK. Well, we could get into a whole discussion about that, but I kinda want to let other people ask their questions, because you and I can talk about this, if there are no questions. Let me see what's the next thing here. We've got, 'what will be the checkmate of the current system?' Does that question even make sense?"

TMan:

"Well, no, it makes sense. This comes from Australia. Your system is part of the Fed's system down there, so you are as affected as we are here in the States. But it's interesting, you know, you say checkmate. The question is not really formed properly and I can take it about six different ways, but 'what will the checkmate be.' The checkmate is always about people, in this case. Who's going to win the overall battle of control. Will it be the old guard or will it be the new guard. That's where the battle is. So your checkmate is, who will win the battle by virtue of sides. You've got a good side and a bad side and, because I'm a White Hat, I view it that way. So the answer to the question is when the people decide who wins this battle for control. And that's something that is really tough to put an answer to."

Kerry:

“OK. But, let’s just say that if the Global Settlements and the Dinar go through, is that the end of the battle of the systems? I mean, you’re saying it’s a reset. Is the battle over, or is it just begun?”

TMan:

“That’s another tough question, because it’s based on people. OK. If it was a mechanism, a filing system, and there was control of that, that would be one way, that would be one way to answer. My personal fear is that, as we watch what right now looks like the end of the Federal Reserve System, the question on my mind is, you know, they’ve plundered so much cash (that) they’ve stolen from all sectors. You know, we had a guy named Joe Falcone, and Joe had seven hundred million dollars stolen from him by Bush and his group, and it was put into a trade program. We tracked the money. We know where it is. Do you think anybody in the system is going to go against Bush? Not happen! The question is, how do you quantify it and how do you take it back from the people that stole it? Very difficult to do. How do you quantify anything, relative to the the thefts, any of the dollars? How do you quantify any one aspect of any of this? You’ve got the MSN, you’ve got PR, you’ve got lies, deceit, everything going on to cover all this up. There’s no singular specific answer on how to uncover it. That’s why we have something like the White Hat Reports. When we started out with the White Hats we really didn’t want to do a blog. We actually used it as a communication piece because we knew that it was going to get picked up by the people that we wanted to see it. It’s not like we could go up to their office, knock on their door and say ‘Hey. This is the message that we wanted to deliver.’ We selected a blog, and look whats happen since then.

(brief dialogue between Kerry and the producers of the radio show about when their time is up)

Kerry:

“We appreciate that. Thank you giving us the time. OK. We’ll let TMan finish up here. I’m not sure what you were saying here but, I know that we have a lot of questions back to back here and maybe they’re just not going to get their questions answered. How much time do we have exactly?”

Night Hawk: (the D.J. of the next show)

“Hi. This is Night Hawk. I don’t mind if you go over (you time limit) if you can go a little faster. You’re spending about 20 minutes on a question. I don’t even know who you are talking to but I would like, Kerry, if possible, for you to get him back for like two weeks in a row for a really good two-parter so we can delve into this.”

Kerry:

“OK, well, this is TMan. The White Hats are well known, actually, around the internet and I also release their communiquees to the people.”

Night Hawk:

“Right. Oh, I just got in here (to the studio) like 20 minutes before midnight, so I, just myself, got rolled into this, but I think this is very interesting information we’re getting. You got huge numbers (of listeners) and I think this would make a really in depth two parter, in my own opinion, being somebody just like you, that's in Media. It would be cool if we could line that up."

Kerry:

"Yah, (this is) a unique situation. This person is not always available to do this kind of thing. I've just put his website in the chat here. I put it here in the SKYPE. If you could put it in the chats, that would be great, and that way people will know who we're talking to."

Night Hawk:

"Go ahead and role 'till one (1:00 am). I'll do my show then. That's fine. I can do my show when ever I want, so, (he chuckles)."

Kerry:

"Do you want us to continue or? I'm sorry, I don't understand."

Night Hawk:

"Just go ahead and continue. We'll skip all the breaks and you got another 28 minutes and go for it and I'll take on."

Kerry:

"Alright. Excellent! The people will appreciate (that). This man has a great deal of experience in the financial sector, so that's where he's talking from, and I guess we'll go back to where he was answering before and I will advise him to keep his answers short. He actually may be called in the middle of this. We don't know. There's a lot going on. People can appreciate that. This thing is not a moving target. He's actually involved in some of this in the background. So, let me see where we were. We were done with the checkmate. As far as the Global Settlements and the Bank for International Settlements, did you talk about that?"

TMan:

"No. They don't have anything to do with one another."

Kerry:

OK. They're different. "You're talking about (the fact that) the Global Settlements and the B.I.S. are two different things?"

TMan:

"Yes."

Kerry:

"What about 'military support for the release of the Global Settlements.'"

TMan:

“The military is going to remain quiet. Realistically, everybody wants to claim that they have military support, and they want to go through all of that. The reality is the military is not going to say anything. They are a very neutral party that represent all Americans, and, you know, if it gets to the point where there is such a calamity going on here, then they have the ability to step in. We’re not at that point and, I think, for anybody to claim that they have total military support is a ludicrous comment. Now, having said that, does the military know what’s going on? Hell yah! You better believe it. They know everything going on. They watch all aspects and that’s what they’re charged to do. They’re charged to protect us. The unfortunate part is that you get into the concept of ‘do they or can they protect against the financial collapse. Well, unfortunately that’s not their job. That’s the job of other people. And they have to allow those people to work. Do they have a voice? Yah they do. Doesn’t mean it (advice) is going to be taken. No. Next question.”

Kerry:

“OK. And thank you again (to Knight Hawk) for letting us take some time here.

(next Skype question) ‘Gold in Fort Knox. What happens if we find there’s none there?’

Kerry: “I thought we found out there was none there! Can you elaborate?”

TMan:

Yah. There’s none there. Now whatayagonna do? (big laugh from both of them). You get mad. You shake your fist. Yah know, everybody thought Fort Knox was the epitome of our gold collection arm (of the government). It’s not. Never really has been. It’s more of a, whatdaya call it, ?

Kerry:

“National Icon?”

TMan:

“Well, the facility is a national icon but the concept is more of an Urban Legend.

Kerry:

“I see. Alright. OK, let’s see. ‘What form will the global settlements take. At our level what will this look like?’

TMan:

“In reality, most people probably would never know about the Global Settlements, unless you happen to be in blogdom and you happen to see something that says that the settlements have been kicked in place. The form that probably would be best viewed to the public is through job creations, major projects, infrastructure, upgrading. You know, we’ve seen proposals to upgrade everything from the electric grid to mass transportation, water, telecommunications, next generation and all that. So, it’s all part of it.”

Kerry:

“OK. Next question. And we’re going to kinda blow through these a little faster. Just so people can appreciate that we have limited time, so we can try to get to everything.

‘How much is one American Dollar in Dinars?’

TMan:

“At this very moment, I’m going to let you extrapolate the numbers, but you can buy one million Dinar for approximately one thousand dollars from any of the dealers around the country. So, bust that down to an equivalent of one dollar (one thousand to one).”

Kerry:

“OK. The next question is, ‘Will the money I have in the bank retain it’s value.’

I mean that’s a good question. I’m going to put a corollary to that, because, isn’t it possible the Dinar could revalue and then they could shoot the dollar down to zero? And I’m not sure how they’ll do that, but isn’t it possible they could do that?

TMan:

“Yah, it is. But, what’s going to make it a little bit more difficult is there’s going to be a transition point here. And, to be honest with you, I don’t have all of the details, as they’ve not been released, so all we can do is extrapolate from experience. But, the new American Dollars, the New American Currency, is printed and it’s ready to come out and it is based on (??), which has to do with the value of each of those dollars. There has to be a correlation. The question that should be pertinent to you, ‘Is the dollars that you currently have in the bank, versus the new currency - so it’s the new versus the old - and whether or not there’s going to be discount, if you will, of the old currency as it relates to the new currency?’ We don’t know that yet. That’s not been put out. We’ve not seen the protocol or the plan, so we can’t answer that at this point.”

Kerry:

“OK. Looks like they want more about the Federal Reserve, and the Federal Reserve, what they’re saying are New Federal Reserve Notes. ‘How will that transition take place. What happens when the Fed contract is up?’ I think, in a sense, we answered this so, if you’re coming in late to the story here, what you can do is listen to, obviously, the archived radio show and you’ll get your answer to those questions. Do you agree with me or do you want to say more?”

TMan:

“No. I agree with that.”

Kerry:

“Someone thinks you’re a good interesting guest. That’s very nice. Let’s see. Let me just say that you (the audience) have to understand that this is Project Camelot, this is Project Camelot Radio Show. We don’t run by normal rules, and we tend to get some really incredible guests. There’s a reason for that. We don’t put a lot of demands on people and I can say that whistleblowers and people that are fighting the good fight, if you want to put it that way, are not always available on a regular schedule.

So, we will do the best we can, but we cannot promise anything. OK. On to the questions. ‘What would a different system look like besides the Fed system.’ Does that make any (sense)?

TMan:

“It does. As far as the financial services that are offered, it would be very detrimental to all of the leadership of the world to take away financial services from people. To answer the question, I would encourage everybody to take a look at what happens from the time you get up in the morning to the time that you go to bed at night. And take a look at the electronic exposure that has invaded your life, and how much of that electronic exposure has to do with the financial system, or where you might see some overlaps. Although they’re secure, some systems are used simultaneously. So, what does a system look like, a different system? I’m not sure, but, if the powers to be are trying to keep things copasetic, and they’re trying to keep calm in the lands, that there’s going to be a seamless transition. Everything is going to be available. They may even try to air things like DTCC (the Depository Trust & Clearing Corporation) if the Federal Reserve goes bankrupt, based on how they are formed, which entities are going bankrupt, how all that looks and feels, will determine the actual onslaught (of the) system, if it is that you are not able to go in and use your ATM card, if you’re not able to go to a teller and get your money. These are things that they are greatly concerned about because of what the expression of that is going to be once that person leaves the bank. And you’re going to get a whole spectrum of emotion, from something where they’re just cussing the bank out, to something that could be extreme. And, you get enough of those expressions of emotion in the land of America, you’re going to see the need for martial law. You’re going to see a need for controlling some of those aspects. We have such a socioeconomic base here in the United States that you’re not going to be able to segment those groups. You’re not going to isolate them. There’s going to be emotional spillover into the other groups. So, what does it look like? I’m not sure that you’re going to actually see any difference. The smart money says, ‘Keep it looking as close to what it looks like now, so that nobody’s inconvenienced.’ So that everything can run smoothly.”

Kerry:

“OK. We need to remind everyone that this is a commercial free, listener supported radio show, and if you would visit the website and support Freedomslips.com, they would really appreciate it. They’ve been skipping breaks. During those breaks they obviously remind you it’s commercial free. They need your support. And I would ask you guys, if you can support the radio station. Revolution Radio is a great radio station. They’ve been hanging in there with Camelot for quite a while now, and they’ve got lots of great other hosts as well. So, if you are able to, if you’re in that position, please do help out. OK. We’ve got another question from Matt Pulver, so I’m going to skip over there, and see if you want to answer this. The question is, ‘Do the red nine digit CUSIP numbers on the back of our social security cards really respond to bonds and, if so, who owns them and how are they traded.’”

TMan:

“That will be the death of me yet.” (Kerry laughs). Matthew, save that question for another time. And, if you and I ever have the opportunity to meet, or if you want to send an email through Kerry, I guess I’ll answer that. Because they want me to keep these answers short and there’s no way I can do it if I answer that.”

Kerry:

“OK. So, you’re not postponing the answer because it’s controversial. You’re simply postponing it because it’s too long.”

TMan:

“Yah, because the sponsor would kill me.”

Kerry:

“Alright. That’s fair enough. So, Matt, maybe you can ask something a little more pertinent to what’s going on here. Yah know, and I appreciate that question. I think it’s a good one, so I’m not putting down the question.

TMan:

“It basically runs to ownership. Who owns us.”

Kerry:

“It runs to who owns us, is what he’s saying, which is a good answer and I think that Jordan Maxwell has answered this question on his website, by the way, if you want to do the research to find the answer. Lets see. Somebody’s saying ‘Can you talk about your take on a move away from trading oil in U.S. Dollars (as it is) regarding U.S. politics.’”

TMan:

“That’s something that’s been in the news quite a bit lately, but the U.S. Dollar is the world’s reserve dollar. Basically that means that, in a sentence, ‘everybody can rely on the dollar to be here, it’s strength and what it means.’ Everybody, after WWII, used the reserve dollar and agreed that the United States would pay back the reserve dollar. They would be the placard holder for the world. During the last few years, between the politics, the off balance sheet accounts, the need to control the space program, the fox holes, and all of the very silly decisions that they’ve made, for what ever (reason), silly decisions that has gotten out of control, we find ourselves disrespected for our financial prowess, and we find ourselves disrespected for our political prowess, and we find ourselves disrespected as a country. I don’t think that anybody can disagree with any of that. How it relates to this question is that the rest of the world - now this would be the Russians, the Chinese, the Arabs, whoever else are not feeling real fuzzy, warm and fuzzy, with the United States and some of the decisions we’ve made as prudent financial people. Ya know, we’ve done it all for the sake of an ideology. That ideology being the space program and the fox hole. The rest of the world is getting tired of being pushed around. They don’t necessarily, from my understanding, get any benefit from the Fox Hole. They don’t receive any benefit from the United States not taking care of it’s responsibilities world wide financially. When that happens, you have people that, in groups and in countries, don’t feel real comfortable in putting all it’s eggs in one basket. So they need to spread those eggs around a little bit or get into different baskets. So, when it is that we are talking about the currency for the oil, what’s going to be the quote/unquote reserve currency for the oil or how is it going to be traded, they're saying, 'ya know, U.S. you're not the brightest, not the smartest, you're not the most prudent. You've done really stupid things because of your own ideologies to take over, to the impact going on in this world called Earth, and in other worlds. And you've done it religiously and you've done it without rhyme or reason. Therefore you're not responsible.' Hence, the basis for your question."

Kerry:

"OK. So, well, let me just say that the writer here says it's an act of war, and possibly there's a part of the United States, this Cabal, who feels it's an act of war to try to move away from having the US as the reserve currency. Isn't that right?" I mean, isn't it possible countries will go to war over that issue? And they know that China wan't to be the reserve currency. I don't know if anyone else does, or even has the, sort of, wherewithal to even play in that game, but we certainly know that China would like to be the reserve currency, right?

TMan:

"And you have to take a look to motivation. Yah, and we get into all the conversations about a country's aspirations. You take a look at it from maybe a biblical standpoint and you hear that you have this big army that's going to be generated from the West coming over and taking over whatever, and then you hear other groups, other ideologies, other talk, whether it be political or another frame of reference, says 'This country would like to do this. This country would like to do this. This country wants to be this.' Everybody has aspirations but, in the big world, you have to be prudent men. And the Chinese - I'll give you my opinion based off of what I've been told by many leaders world wide - the Chinese are not looking to take over the world. The Chinese have more problems at home that they need to concern themselves with, and they're concerned about their own protection. They're concerned about all the things on their home front just like we are. And, if one item in another country starts to proliferate - it could be financial, nuclear, (it) doesn't matter - then they have to start taking a look at what's their countermeasure, because their intel is telling them, hey, these guys are doing this. So, if it is that everybody did the Kumbaya (peaceful, harmonious cooperation), and got together, which is not real - but, if they were to do that, and they were all on one platform, then we wouldn't have these problems in the world, except for the little guys that wanna have big feet. And, we see that in the world. We see North Korea, we see Iran, whether they're created (false P.R.) or not. That's the problem."

Kerry:

"OK. The reserve currency issue has gotta have, it's got teeth, in other words, or legs, how ever you want to look at it. In other words, countries such as China - there is a move right now - it may be, as I was told by somebody recently, posturing, but nonetheless the talk is to get - again because of the sorta move, and because of the way the United States has behaved internationally - there is a move away from wanting to have the U.S. be the petro dollar, as they call it. Right?"

TMan:

"Right.

Kerry:
“They want to buy and sell oil and in fact some countries at this time are doing just that. Right?”

TMan:
“That’s correct.”

Kerry:
“So it’s a very real issue. Whether it’s an act of war is, I think, another step along that trajectory. I had a conversation with somebody today, and they said to me that there’s no way that the U.S. would let go of being the reserve currency.”

TMan:
“(The) U.S. may not have any choice.”

Kerry:
“OK.”

TMan:
“The U.S. is in a very weak position right now. The U.S. is not what it used to be. It’s voice is not heard like it used to be, and they’re definitively not respected like they used to be. There’s a difference between respect and bullying, and the Cabal is about bullying. They want what they want, but they’re going to get what they want. They’re going to move in the background and get what they want. That’s all part of life. That’s all part of what goes on in the real world. Depends on how you use it. It depends on the extent to which you decide to use it, and how far down that path you’re gonna go. Right now they’re at the end extreme of their path, and the world is fighting back. We’re hoping that the world has the cahones to say that they have the voice. And (if) enough of the world will get together, they’re gonna tell the U.S. where to go, and they’re doing it right now.”

Kerry:
“OK.”

TMan:
“Thats just item on a long list of what they’re telling ‘em.

Kerry:
“Right. Alright. One of the issues - and I know it’s not in the questions here, but I’m sure they’re also saying, ‘No, we’re not going to go for a war with Iran.’

TMan:
“What I heard you say: That position is a fallacy to think that that’s going to happen. They’re going to try to push it. There are some groups that are going to try to push it, but there’s been many problems with Iraq. There’s been too many problems with the infamous WMD (Weapons of Mass Destruction). You’ve got 911 that you have to contend with, and it doesn’t matter what the books say. It doesn’t matter what the commissions say. Everybody in the background, in their head, says, 'What if this actually did happen the way that the conspiracy blogs are saying, that it has happened. What happens if in fact that happened that way, and it was all wrong, what we were told?' Now we have to worry about what they're telling us in another region of the world, and if that's gonna turn out to be WWII, we need to think about that. Because we can't have another World War two on our hands. Due to too much technology in the last 60 years that has come forth, and with the space program, nobody knows what the hell's going on."

Kerry:

"OK. Alright. So basically what you're saying no war with Iran is the position with a lot of the world. However the Bush Cabal may have something else in mind."

TMan:

"Exactly. And people we don't see that are trying to run the world."

Kerry:

"Right. And it's not just the Bush Cabal. So, and Camelot Listeners know this. OK. We're going to have to wrap up here. Thank you Revolution Radio for your patience and for being open to having TMan come on my show unexpectedly in this way. This is just the luck of the draw, and we are very lucky tonight. This was a very great thing and this will go down possibly in history, in terms of people being able to hear verbally from these guys, because they don't often do this. They are on their own website. We've got tdarkcabal.blogspot.com put out there on our site, so check out The White Hats Report.
